Regional Conservation Investment Strategies

Program Guidelines: Fees

This fee schedule is part of the Regional Conservation Investment Strategies Program Guidelines (Guidelines),¹ as referenced in Section 1.3 of the Guidelines.

When to Pay

Regional Conservation Investment Strategies (RCIS) Program fees must be paid prior to CDFW's formal review of the first draft submission of any RCA, RCIS, or MCA.² Formal review of any draft document will begin on the date that both the draft document and fee have been received. In the case that the draft document and fee are submitted on different days, the review will begin on the latter of the two days.

If paying by wire transfer, contact the RCIS Program Team at rcis@wildlife.ca.gov for specific instructions.

Fee Adjustments

Fees will be adjusted annually using the Implicit Price Deflator (IPD) for State and Local Government Purchases of Goods and Services, as published by the United States Department of Commerce. The rate of change for the annual fee adjustment is determined by comparing the March 31 quarter end IPD index of the current year to the March 31 quarter end IPD index of the prior year. Each current fee is multiplied by the relative amount of change in the IPD index. The product is added to the fee for the current year and then rounded to the nearest $0.25 increment. The resulting amounts are the adjusted fees for the new calendar year, beginning January 1.

Fees may be further adjusted based on an evaluation of the actual time required by CDFW staff to review and approve RCIS Program documents.

When a fee includes “Up to” language, CDFW will consider the expected workload resulting from the change or resubmittal requested and will calculate a fee that compensates for the expected workload. These calculations will be conducted on a case-by-case basis, as necessary.
