2022 BEAR VALLEY TULE ELK HUNT
HUNT OVERVIEW

Hunt dates:

Antlerless and bull: October 8–16, 2022

CDFW Contact: Josh Bush, Unit Wildlife Biologist, 916-240-6350, Joshua.Bush@wildlife.ca.gov

Hunters are legally required to know and follow current hunting regulations. Related regulations are listed later in this document.

Geography and maps

This Elk Hunt Zone is characterized by steep, rugged topography that can be difficult to traverse. CDFW has an interactive mapping program that allows you to zoom into 7.5-minute topographical maps, view hunt zones and CDFW owned lands, and access other geographic data. A map of this hunt zone is also provided below.

Public and private access

Your elk tag does not give you the authority to enter private property nor is it valid on Private Land Management (PLM) areas that harvest elk. Elk in this zone are found almost exclusively on private property, which is open to elk hunting only with written permission (California FGC 2016) from the landowner. Landowners have sole discretion over access to their property, including access fees, and substantial access fees are likely. CDFW does not have a list of landowners who offer private-land access.

Collared elk

Some elk within the hunt zone have been fitted with GPS collars to help CDFW collect information on elk survival, habitat use, movements, and distributions, which helps inform elk conservation and management. In the event that you take a collared elk, please contact the unit biologist listed at the top of this document immediately so CDFW can make arrangements to retrieve the collar. Hunting regulations require collars to be returned to CDFW within 10 days of harvest (Title 14 CCR §364\(n\)\(3\)).

Tooth collection

CDFW collects teeth from harvested animals for age determination. Successful hunters should remove only the two front teeth and return them using the provided envelope. Do not wrap teeth in plastic or enclose in materials other than the envelope provided as this may cause teeth to rot. Tooth-age results will be posted online as soon as possible, but may not be available until 2023 or later.

Return elk teeth samples by mail to:

California Department of Fish and Wildlife
Wildlife Branch — Elk and Pronghorn Program
PO Box 944029
Sacramento, CA 94244

Lameness in elk and collection of hoof samples

If you observe elk that are limping, lame, or sickly in appearance, or have deformed, broken, or missing hooves, please report your observation to CDFW immediately by calling the unit biologist at the top of this document or by using the online mortality reporting tool:

<https://wildlife.ca.gov/conservation/laboratories/wildlife-investigations/monitoring/mortality-report>

Although signs such as lameness or limping can have various causes, they can be an indication of treponeme associated hoof disease (TAHD, elk hoof disease) – a type of hoof rot related to infection by bacteria in the Treponema genus. Elk hoof disease has been detected in elk in Washington, Oregon, and Idaho, and was first reported in elk in Del Norte County, California, in April 2020. CDFW is conducting surveillance to determine the statewide prevalence and distribution of elk hoof disease.

If you harvest an elk, please inspect its hooves and feet according to training information that will be provided in your packet. If there are hoof or foot abnormalities as described in the training, we ask that you cut the affected hoof off just above the dewclaws for submission to the unit biologist. Use the provided Tyvex tag to identify your name and tag number, location and date of harvest, and which hoof is included (left/right, front/hind). Please contact the CDFW staff member listed at the top of this document immediately to arrange transfer of samples to CDFW.

Tagging harvested animals and reporting on your hunt

Successful hunters are required to completely fill out their tag, tag their animal, and have the tag validated by an authorized individual (see §708.6 and §708.11 in Title 14 California Code of Regulations).

CDFW implores all elk hunters to provide the most accurate harvest information possible. Information you provide will contribute to conservation and management of California's elk herds, including for their continued recreational use and hunter opportunity. Harvest data are crucial for CDFW personnel to evaluate and modify harvest strategies, assess herd health, track elk distributions, and recommend tag quota changes to the California Fish and Game Commission. For harvest locations, reporting a GPS location is encouraged. Online reporting is ideal, but please use any method to report your hunt.

Care of meat

Improper handling of a carcass can lead to meat spoilage. Warm ambient temperatures and steep, rugged terrain within the hunt zone make it critical you are prepared to properly care for the meat if you harvest an animal. Elk are large mammals and hold heat, which leads to spoilage. Promote cooling by opening the neck area, hip joints, and shoulders of the carcass. You should be physically fit and prepared to skin and quarter or de-bone and pack out your elk immediately after it is tagged. Meat should be hung in fly-proof, breathable sacks in the shade while you're still in the field. If you are hunting by yourself, you will need a minimum of four game sacks (six is better for loose cuts of meat), plenty of rope, a game hoist, a knife, a knife sharpener, and a pack frame. A meat saw or hatchet and a tarp also are recommended. Never lay meat directly on the bed of a truck because the exhaust system heats the bed and can lead to spoilage. It is suggested you place a pad or sleeping bag between the bed of the truck and the meat for insulation.

Failure to properly care for or remove all edible portions of a harvested animal can lead to a violation of the California Fish and Game Code, §4304.
